Transformative Transport

It's well known that public transport options produce lower carbon emissions per passenger than travelling by car or taxi.

But in the Liverpool City Region we've gone further, making the choice even easier.

In this section you can discover all the sustainable transport Liverpool City Region has to offer from battery powered trains, low emission busses to active travel routes and e-scooters.

Merseyrail

Battery Powered trains operate over the entire Merseyrail network, reducing the carbon footprint of your journey by 66% compared to traveling in a car.

With cycle storage at stations, and dedicated bike spaces on all trains, why not combine your journey with other sustainable options.

Walking

Liverpool has been ranked as the 11th most walkable city in the world by Forbes.

Whether you're walking to get from A to B in the city, exploring the region's coasts or country parks, you can plan your route here.

Cycling & E-scooter travel

Over 2000 e-scooters and e-bikes, providing carbon neutral travel are available to hire in the Liverpool City Region, powered by Bolt. Find out more on how to hire a Bolt vehicle here.

Don't know where to explore? Find interactive and downloadable cycle maps here.

Or plan your own route! Whether walking, cycling or using an E-scooter, plan your route across the whole city region here.

Buses

7 in ten buses in the city are low emission, running on cleaner fuels like electricity, naturally occurring biomethane gas or a mix of the two.

You can travel from Liverpool John Lennon Airport to the city centre on one of our low emission busses in just half an hour.

Eco Friendly Eats

For a growing number of Liverpool's restaurants sustainability is on the menu!

In this section you can explore our recommendations for an eco-friendly eat or drink from carbon neutral restaurants to vegan cafés.

Murray Bold St & Albert Dock

With this eco-friendly eat, its two sustainable locations for the price of one!

Founded in 2014 by James Bates, Tom White and Dom Jones, Maray was inspired by experiences in the Le Marais district of Paris, an area influenced by Middle Eastern food. They serve exciting, beautiful small plates inspired by Middle Eastern recipes, accompanied by zingy, joyous cocktails.

Best of all, you can enjoy their wonderful hospitality with a clear conscience: they have been certified Carbon Neutral since 2021, thanks to their support for reforestation and forest protection around the world

Free State Kitchen

Maryland Street Georgian Quarter

Not only does FSK come deservedly high in lists of Britain's best burgers, it also uses its lovely courtyard garden to grow as much of its food as it can, fertilising the crops with grounds from their tasty coffee. Led by husband and wife team Gary and Kate, it serves a contemporary twist on American classics.

The team regularly spices up their menu too, offering short-term specials like their yummy one celebrating the Lunar New Year (pictured). You simply must eat here.

Nettle Café

Hamilton Square, Birkenhead

Located next to Birkenhead's beautiful Georgian Hamilton Square, Nettle Café is set in a community crafts centre. Julia Strelzuk, who set up Nettle, believes in the power of good natural foods to improve wellbeing as well as protecting the environment, and where possible use produce grown on-site.

Committed to sustainability, the café recently rescued the books that had been housed in a much-loved bookshop at Williamson Art Gallery, you can now find them safe and cosy in a corner of Nettle (as pictured), just ready to help you relax with a cuppa.

The Vibe

Paradise St Ropewalks

This vegan café is right next to Liverpool One in the heart of the city, in a magnificent Victorian building. Serving breakfast and lunch, it's a massive favourite with visitors and locals alike for exciting, ethical, plant-based eating.

Whilst their usual menu is lovely, they also regularly offer specials, like this (pictured) yummy cheese, mushroom, and broccoli omelette, all plant-powered of course.

Carbon Offsetting

You've made great sustainable choices for your trip, well done! Even with eco-friendly travel decisions, there's still a carbon impact to consider.

Carbon offsetting is a powerful way to balance that impact, by reducing the carbon footprint of your trip to zero or even going beyond by offsetting more than you emit

You can calculate your trip's carbon footprint of your trip and explore offsetting options here
